Un crudo retrato de la criminalidad llevada al extremo. Vicente es un adolescente que junto con dos de sus compañeros de escuela asesina a su padre, a su madre y a su hermana; al primero, de dos disparos y a las mujeres, a puntaladas. Pretende fingir un secuestro por parte del narco y pedir rescate a la familia de su madre. Está seguro de que nada le sucederá porque la mayoría de los crímenes que se cometen en su localidad, Ciudad Juárez, quedan impunes. Basada en hechos reales y tras una intensa investigación, Sandra Rodríguez Nieto entretiene la vida de Vicente y su ingreso a la banda de los Artistas Asesinos, con el creciente deterioro de la vida en Juárez: la situación de guerra, el cinismo de las autoridades, los narcomensajes, los decapitados y, sobre todo, la absoluta impunidad de los criminales, quienes han tejido toda una red de complicidades por medio de la corrupción.

Amazing and disturbing biography of a teen killer - and city in turmoil

By Lise Olsen

This book, written by one of the leading investigative reporters in Mexico, is a gripping account of how a young man plots to kill his parents and younger sister, plans to blame organized criminals and collect a ransom - and never dreams he'll be caught. Author Sandra Rodríguez seizes this outrageous and horrifying teenaged crime in Ciudad Juárez as a metaphor and a symptom of a deeper sickness caused by his home town's unceasing violence and turmoil. Rodríguez puts the intelligent, resentful and manipulative young man in context of the society of Juárez, a city where shootings and kidnappings have become common and where police, prosecutors and politicians are considered corrupt and inept. Then she goes deeper, bringing the reader the full story of how the teen does get caught - and then how the homicide case and he move through the criminal justice system, juvenile detention and prison and finally emerge back onto the streets at an even darker time in Juárez history. An amazing and well-written story loaded with dramatic scenes, compelling details and important information.
