Great Stress Relief!!

By Cookie Monster

Let me start off by saying that I just recently got into the "Adult Coloring Book" scene and was very happy with this as one of my first books. I quickly learned however that the use of this book in certain places is not recommended. Im typically not a mean or angry person, but thought the idea of a few bad words and sayings being colored in was a good way to vent without actually saying them. I got my book, busted out my pencils and began to color away some frustrations.

I began with the simple word "dumba$$" as I liked the way it appeared with the flowers and animals with it. After about 3 minutes, I immediately remembered that I could not color to save my life and began to get upset. Constantly outside the lines, I attempted to "fade" or "Blend" the colors together, but it ended up looking like a raccoon ate a box of crayons and took a dump of my paper. I tried endless ways, including going on Google for tips. I became extremely upset and angry and started swearing obscenities at myself getting louder and louder as I stabbed the paper with my swords of colored vengeance in an attempt to make the picture look less like a Fraggles Rock colored murder scene. I found that no matter what I tried nothing worked, much like a teenager trying to get rid of acne the day before picture day. Everything just got worse and I was getting more upset very quickly.

At this point, the librarian came up to me and asked me to be quiet, as I was disturbing the children storytime that was being read 10 feet away. I attempted to gather myself, but before I could, one of the little turds walked over and asked why my paper had color in all the wrong places. I screamed, and lost it. Flinging my pencils at the child like darts from a blowgun, I started yelling "is this in the lines,huh?" as I continued my barrage of colors at him and his little judgmental friends. The librarian immediately began to chase me, which only made me angrier and I began to run around throwing pencils at everyone with the Coloring Book rolled up like a club which I would swing at the librarian or security guard when they got too close. Eventually, I was tackled and kicked out.

Despite the permanent ban from the library and large amount of bruises from the assault of the security guard, I would say this book did exactly as intended. I feel great, and I only had to color 1 Picture!! I can't wait for my next book and new set of colored pencils I ordered as my last one was obviously ruined and taken from me along with my colored spears of justice.

5 out of 5

Would definitely recommend and buy again!!

Completely brilliant, funny

By Zombie Kitte

Completely brilliant, funny, and just plain fun. I love all the cute little animals playing amongst filthy, dirty, cuss words. Great if you're into adult coloring books, definitely relieves stress coloring words you wish you could say. But, I tend to say these bad words aloud anyway, so this book is perfect for the person who tends to have a bit of a potty mouth, and loves to color. These are samples of the author's work that will be given to you once you subscribe and you will be able to get more pictures to print, so you can color them while waiting on your book to arrive. Love this author and this coloring book.

Yes, it's sick and twisted. Yes, I love it. Yes, I own it.

By Tara M. Carstensen

My main problem is NOT sending the completed page to whomever inspired it. But they are great fun to color and very therapeutic, in a warped sort of way. It's great fun to color on them with very young children who can't read yet. They are so happy you're coloring with them and passers by are horrified that you're coloring with them. I highly recommend it.
